HEAT PUMP WATER HEATERS SIMPLIFIED, WITH RON DYMEK OF DYMEK'S FREEDOM PLUMBING

Several EAOC members have already worked with Ron Dymek, of Dymek's Freedom Plumbing, by adding tankless water heaters and water conditioners to their homes. So, in this week's morning meeting, we were excited to hear what all the buzz has been about with heat pump water heaters, and to get first-hand homeowner reviews of these systems, including learning all about the current incentives and rebates being offered.

Water heaters are the second highest source of energy usage in the home, contributing to as much as 30% of a household's energy cost. On average, water heaters use use more energy than a refrigerator, dishwasher, clothes washer and dryer combined. Switching to a high efficiency heat pump versus a standard gas or electric water heater means significantly lower energy bills, fewer carbon emissions, upfront and long-term savings, and plenty of hot water.

Electric heat pump water heaters use warmth from the surrounding air to heat your water. Like air conditioners in reverse, heat is pulled into the storage tank from the surrounding air, helping cool and dehumidify the room in the process. In hybrid mode, when fast recovery is needed, two back-up 4,500-watt copper heating elements heat the water during peak demand periods.

Replacing gas-fired appliances in the home with electric alternatives like the heat pump water heater helps homes to become safer, more efficient, as well as help avoid emitting more carbon emissions into the environment.
