ACTIVE SHOOTER PREVENTION WITH LAPD SERGEANT ADRIENNE LEGASPI

EAOC members were grateful and honored to host LAPD Sergeants Adrienne Legaspi and Mario Rojas during this week's meeting, with an important presentation on active shooter prevention, and the warning signs of pre-attack behavior.

The key takeaway was "See something, say something." An FBI study of active shooters found that 56% openly expressed their intentions prior to attacking, providing warning signs and opportunities to notify law enforcement. Leakage comes in many different forms, including verbal statements, written statements, online posts, and social media communications. As there is no single profile that mass shooters seem to follow, it's important to take all statements seriously and report all suspicious behavior to the authorities.

Another life-saving tool learned from Sergeants Legaspi and Rojas is what to do if caught in an active shooting event, which is to RUN, HIDE, FIGHT. Fighting should be viewed as a last resort, if running or hiding have failed, but if it's the only option you have, fight with everything you've got.

A special thank you to Sergeants Legaspi and Rojas for sharing their time, wisdom, and life-saving training with EAOC members. Also, thank you to Karyn Hadley for her time and effort in coordinating this special training.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Hello EAOC!

Thank you to Karyn Hadley of TS Home Design, her husband, Brian Hadley and Sgt. Adrienne Legaspi of LAPD Major Crimes, and of course the entire staff of the LAPD for this week's Active Shooter Prevention Presentation. This type of training is something we hope we will never need, and we had some great takeaways today. You can run, hide, cover, or fight, and if you hear something or see something, please make the call to your local Police Department—and be specific.

Thank you to Manny and Sammy for having the food hot and ready for us at 6:45 this week, and please try to arrive at this time weekly so we can start promptly at 7:00 AM.

Just a reminder that we are dark the week of March 27th.

Have a great weekend!

- Ron
